

The Brereton Memorial Fund

(Incorporating the Agnes Rolph Bequest)

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR APPLICANTS

ABOUT THE FUND

The Brereton Memorial Fund was founded in memory of Philip and Gwen Brereton, of Rochdale, who died in December 2000.

Throughout their lives they gave up much of their free-time to work voluntarily for the Incorporated Association of Organists, the Royal College of Organists and the Oldham Rochdale and Tameside Organists' Association.

For many years Philip and Gwen were well-known as the Organisers of the IAO Annual Congress.

In particular they worked to help youngsters discover organ and choral music and were especially keen to encourage British organists to explore organ building and organ music throughout Europe and beyond.

AIMS OF THE FUND

The Brereton Memorial Fund aims to support:

- A local memorial project to commemorate the work of Philip and Gwen Brereton
- Music education projects both in the North West area and nationally
- The teaching of the organ at every level to students of all ages.
- The nurturing of choral music especially church music

HOW MUCH WE WILL FUND

The fund generally has in the region of £1000-£1500 per year to award to applicants, although this may vary from year to year.

- We will aim to offer at least two student bursaries per year to bona-fide organ students to attend the IAO annual Congress. (applications to be made directly to the Congress Organiser)
- We also hope to award a number of smaller grants per year.
- The trustees of the fund have agreed to consider the award of larger bursaries for far-reaching, more ambitious educational projects. Awards of this kind will generally not represent more the 10% of the overall value of the Fund. [currently limited to £2900]

The following list of size of bursaries awarded in the past is intended as guidelines only:

- for help towards musical tuition costs £300
- towards the costs of attending a course £100
- towards the costs of purchasing music £100

In general a time limit of 18 months is expected in which you must claim your award (or 6 months in the case of music vouchers awarded). Time limits for projects are decided on a case by case basis.

WHAT WE WILL NOT FUND

We will not undertake to fund on-going costs.
We will not fund running costs for current activity.
